House, Building Plans to be approved online

MCC, MUDA, District Departments to come under hassle-free online Land & Building Plan Approval System

Mysuru, Feb. 26 (RK&BCT)- Almost a year after taking a new step towards implementing an online system of land, building and layout plan approvals, land use change and other related permissions, the State Government is in the process of implementing the system and expects the facility to roll out soon.

The Urban Development Department officials are being trained to implement the hassle-free online Land and Building Plan Approval System (LBPAS) for building plan sanction and land use change where people can get online building plan approval, online layout approval and online change of land use approval.

LBPAS will bring greater transparency, end corruption and save people's time and money. The initiative, apart from putting an end to people running from pillar to post to get approvals, will also remove middlemen from the system.

The LBPAS software will cover building plan approvals, layout approval and change in land use. The facility will be applicable across all Urban Local Bodies, including 10 Municipal Corporations. It is designed such that once the building plan is uploaded, it is routed internally to various Departments or parastatal agencies.

A building plan that does not comply with zonal regulations or master plans will be rejected automatically by the software.

Official sources said that the advantage with the system is that citizens will no longer have to apply for other permits or approvals separately. Manual applications for No-Objection Certificates (NOC) will not be required, the sources added.

Delhi violence: Toll rises to 20

CM seeks Army deployment

New Delhi, Feb. 26- At least 20 people have been killed and more than 150 injured after three days of continuous violence in North East Delhi. The Delhi Police struggled to check the rioters who rampaged through parts of North East Delhi looting, burning buildings and vehicle, and thrashing people. The areas which were mostly affected include Chand Bagh, Bhajanpura, Gokulpuri, Maujpur, Kardampuri and Jaffrabad.

Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal has asked the Centre to rush in Armed Forces to curtail the spread of violence. "I have been in touch with large number of people. Situation is alarming and the Police, despite all its efforts, are unable to control situation and instil confidence. Army should be called in and curfew must be imposed in rest of affected areas immediately," he said.

Peek at poverty

Judged by the parameter of the family's monthly income to meet even the basic needs of life, popularly known as roti-kapada-makan, a typical village resident fares very poorly compared to a typical urban resident, thanks to many avenues of earning money in urban space. The comparison, revealing the stinging urban-rural divide on count of cash that the families of the two sections in the population are known to command, may have triggered the top brass in the Government to issue public statement of doubling the income of the farming fraternity. Granting that the measure may enable the rural families to move from the zone of misery to that of comfort, the ongoing exodus of rural residents to urban spaces may abate to some extent, provided the migrants realise that the higher cost of living in cities will more than offset the incremental income that is earned. Doubling the income of rural families, if achieved mainly by substantially raising the minimum support price of their agro produce, the urbanities will have to cough up more cash to buy their food, leading to the ridiculous outcome of the solution worsening the problem.

Saint Purandara Dasa's prescription of voluntary poverty, keeping a check on the desires to possess luxuries of life, obviously, doesn't have many takers in this era. Even the philosophical thought that "It is not he who doesn't have that is poor, but it is he who desires for more is poor" seems to mock at poverty. This thought conflicts with the suggestion being made in some circles to expand consumption by public in order to arrest slowdown of the economy.

Talking about poverty gripping millions of the land's people, rural and urban to different extents and in diverse ways, in general terms and poverty of a particular family don't suggest action to address the hardship that poverty brings in its wake. Further, toying with either definition of poverty or changing figures of its percentage in the country's population in different years and also inferring that the malady is reducing to a significant extent have tended to be academic, while these features are relevant in framing policies to alleviate poverty. Ironically, the often publicised rags-to-riches stories of persons rising to top positions or succeeding as entrepreneurs through honest and preserving efforts are only flashed in the dailies about which the sections bugged by abject poverty are totally unaware of.

The views of various agencies concerning poverty in the land needs to be crystallised for laying the road map of action to address the underlying reasons for the malady. The suggestion sourced to some circles on reviving rural-friendly trades that engage the rustics in producing various consumer goods and enabling them to market their produce to generate income has its merits. Success of this effort depends on marshalling teams committed to the task.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

In case of real estate, the impact of limiting interest deduction up to Rs. 2 lakh has had a detrimental effect. For example, if a person takes a loan of Rs. 1.4 crore to buy a property for Rs. 2 crore, his rental income would be around 2.4 per cent or Rs. 4.8 lakh a year. He will pay 8 per cent on his home loan or Rs. 11.2 lakh a year. So renting out would mean a loss of Rs. 6.4 lakh a year. Of this, he can offset Rs. 2 lakh as interest income under Section 24(b). This loss can be carried forward but is lost if there is no real income from the property in future. If the property is self-occupied, his actual loss is the entire interest cost minus Rs. 2 lakh and the balance interest is not even allowed to be carried forward.

Husky waits for his master to get back from work

Kaliningrad: A lot of people, passing by the Mega shopping center in the Russian city of Kaliningrad every day, seea blue sweater-wearing Siberian Husky waiting for someone. Dubbed as the Russian Hachiko, the clean blue sweater that the Russian Hachiko wears every day is a clear indication that he is not some stray, but just to make sure people don't chase him away, his owner, a woman named Svetlana, always hangs a hand-written home next to the dog explaining that he is simply waiting for her to get off work so they can go home together.

Apparently, the dog howls from morning til dusk if left alone in his owner's apartment, so she prefers to take him with her in the morning, and leaves him outside the Mega shopping center, where he waits for like a good boy.

He literally worships Donald Trump as God every single day

Konne: An Indian 'devotee' named Bussa Krishna, literally worships US President Trump as a God, praying to a life-size statue of him every day and making offerings of vermilion, turmeric and flowers to an altar that he built himself.

The 33-year-old from the remote village of Konne in Telangana State, first captured the media's attention a couple of years ago, when pictures of him praying to the altar of Donald Trump and carrying a large portrait of the US President with him went viral online. Now, Trump's two-day visit to India being a major news topic, the Trump devotee is once again newsworthy. A lot has happened in the last two years, But Krishna's devotion to Donald Trump is still unwavering. If anything, it's stronger than before, as evidenced by the statue of Trump that the Indian farmer placed in his yard.

Biography of V.K. Krishna Menon and Musings on Jairam Ramesh

Sir,

Apropos MP Jairam Ramesh's book launch event in city on V.K. Krishna Menon's biography titled "A Chequered Brilliance: The Many Lives of V.K. Krishna Menon" (Feb.21) and the birth centenary lecture on "Sri Jayachamaraja Wadiyar" by Jairam Ramesh at the Senate Bhavan in Manasagangothri (Feb.20), the reports of which were published in SOM dated Feb. 22 along with KBG's "Musings on conversation with Jairam Ramesh," I wish to state as follows:

It is difficult to comprehend why anyone wants to write a book "now" about "Nehru's evil genius." I would have been happy if Mysore Literary Association had instead arranged a reading of the book "V.P. Menon: The Unsung Architect of Modern India" by Narayani Basu.

Be that as it may, it is surprising that Jairam Ramesh, who just the previous day spoke eloquently about Maharaja Sri Jayachamaraja Wadiyar's contribution as the first Chairman of Indian Board for Wildlife had to speak the very next day about someone who caused incalculable pain to the Maharaja by scuttling his promised patronage to Western Music. May be, neither Jairam Ramesh nor the former diplomat Ravi Joshi, who was in conversation with the former Minister of Environment and Forests, were aware of this unpleasant association with the Mysore Maharaja.

Sri Jayachamaraja Wadiyar was not just an Honorary Fellow of Trinity College of Music, London, but one of the greatest patrons of Western Music. The Maharaja founded Medtner Society in London in 1948 and got recorded the entire works of Russian Composer Nicolas Medtner (1880-1951) in 3 Albums (61 works - opus numbers).

"The Gramophone" magazine (world's authority on classical music since 1923) in its 1948 issue says: "The recording by His Master's Voice of the principal compositions of Nicolas Medtner is perhaps, one of the greatest romances in the history of the Gramophone. How fortunate and indeed, wonderful that destiny should have brought Medtner's genius within the spheres of vision and great musical appreciation of H.H. The Maharajah of Mysore. For the Maharajah thereupon decided that Medtner must no longer languish in the desert of neglect, and that his genius and contribution to the world of music must be made known."

This apart, the Maharaja was the first President of the Philharmonia Concert Society and Philharmonia Orchestra, London in 1948.

In the book "On and Off the Record: A Memoir of Walter Legge" by Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, the author recounts: "The visit to Mysore was a fantastic experience. The Maharajah was a young man, not yet thirty... He had intended to be a concert pianist and had been accepted by Rachmaninoff as a pupil when both his father and uncle died and he succeeded to the throne — which meant giving up all ideas of a musical career and returning home at once.

In the weeks I stayed there, the Maharajah had not only agreed to paying for the recordings of the Medtner's piano concerts, an album of his songs and some of his chamber music, he also agreed to give me a subvention of £ 10,000 a year for three years to enable me to put both the Philharmonia Orchestra and the Philharmonia Concert Society on a firm basis. The only condition was that there should be a Committee of distinguished personalities in British musical life — excluding performers.

I returned to London happy about everything except the prospect of a Committee to advice on programmes. As things turned out it was only in the first year that the generous subvention would be paid in full. The malign interference of the late Krishna Menon reduced the annual subvention to £ 5000 after the first year and stopped it completely after two more years."

This despite Sardar Patel, Deputy Prime Minister and Home Minister of India, obliging the Maharaja by getting the Ministry of Finance to release the foreign exchange required for the Philharmonia Concert in London and order being issued to Reserve Bank accordingly.

An interesting footnote to the hagiography of Krishna Menon.

NOTE: *I heard that Jairam Ramesh, just as he had alluded sarcastically to Prime Minister Narendra Modi at his book launch function, had also made a sarcastic remark on Modi at the lecture he delivered the previous day at the Senate Bhavan on 'Jayachamaraja Wadiyar and the Indian Board of Wildlife.' It was about the Congress PM (Dr. Manmohan Singh) wanting to set up a Lion Sanctuary like the Gir Lion National Park but the Chief Minister of Gujarat (Modi, of course) scuttled it. What is the 'wet dog smell'? How can I prevent it?

Some breeds of dogs have more oils in their coats than other breeds. The oil is called Sebum and it collects on the hair shaft and follicles to protect a dog's skin from dehydration. When the dog gets wet, the oil and the water together create a bacteria which causes the unpleasant odour.

This smell can be prevented by proper drying of your dog after bath. Towelling off the dog isn't enough, the heat and force from a blow dryer penetrates the densest of coats and is a start to getting to the root of the problem. Buy good quality dog shampoos which are specifically designed to get deep into the fur and root out those micro-organisms and their by-products.

What are some of the signs of stress in horses?

Stressed horses can start to lose weight. Since there can be many reasons for this, such as heat stress, parasites and poor feed, it's necessary to look at all aspects of the horse's care to troubleshoot weight loss. Stall walking (when a horse walks around a stall, or walks back and forth along one wall repetitively), weaving, cribbing, wood chewing, wall kicking and fence walking, can all be also signs of stress. Yawning, and most horses will do it several times in a row, is a sign that the horse was feeling stressed, and by yawning, is releasing stress. Tooth grinding, without any other dental issues, can also be considered as a sign of physical or physiological stress.

A horse that is stressed can produce copious amounts of manure in a short time. Some may produce very runny manure. Horses will often urinate if stressed. In extreme stress, a horse's ears will stand up high and twitch.

Why does my cat 'chirp' when it sees a bird?

Generally, cat chirping occurs when a cat is interested in, or provoked by, prey — a bird, a squirrel or even a laser dot. It's more of an excited sound and less of a sound used to hunt. It seems to be universal to cats of all ages and breeds. It is possible that the chattering noises are due to excitement, which your cat might feel at seeing the prey nearby, that it can't help but make some special vocalisations. Some research indicates that cats chirp as they try to imitate bird calls to make them come closer.

Why does my cat go crazy running around at night?

Because cats are nocturnal by nature, this is when they are most active. Cats spend a lot of time lying around during the daytime, but they do have energy to burn just like any other animal, and the racing around could be a way of burning that off. While younger cats obviously have more energy to burn, even older cats have been known to race around once in a while. Engaging your cats in a heavy play session at night, to exhaust them, could help them sleep throughout the night.

Running around could also be because your cat is hungry and wants your attention. Feeding your cat late in the night, before going to bed, can help you to keep to the biological schedule of your pet.

Thirdly, it could also be because of an infestation or health challenge. If your cat's midnight running around includes meows, it could be a result of a bite from a flea. This consequently can result in serious itching that may feel uncomfortable for your cat.

Running around in the middle of the night can also be a result of a skin disorder that worsens at night, and Feline Hyperaesthesia Syndrome (FHS) is a well-known cause of this cat reaction.

This disorder results in an increase in general activity and makes the cat display some aggressive behaviours like attacking its own tail, self-grooming and self-directed pouncing, vocalisation, or pupil dilation for some minutes.

Hyperthyroidism in cats, which results from an increase in the production of thyroid hormones, is also known to cause hyperactivity.

Why should animals be spayed or neutered before adoption?

Sometimes people, who come to adopt, look like normal animal lovers. But they turn out to be breeders who will use the animal as a baby machine. By spaying or neutering the animal, you offer for adoption, you will make sure they go to the correct homes of people who want the animal to love rather than to multiply. You will help control the pet homelessness crisis, which results in millions of healthy dogs and cats being killed each year simply because there aren't enough homes to go around.

There are also medical and behavioural benefits to spaying. The female will live a longer, healthier life. Spaying helps prevent uterine infections and breast tumours, testicular cancer and prostate problems, which are malignant or cancerous in about 50 percent of dogs and cats.

Can animals donate blood to each other?

Let us not call it donation, which implies free will. The question is, can the blood of one animal be taken out and given to another. Typically, when blood is taken from an animal, she is typed and checked for blood-borne infectious diseases. Similar to human blood types, there are five major canine blood types, and one is a universal donor, like our "O negative." The actual process of taking blood is quite simple. It takes about 30 minutes and does not require anaesthesia. Blood is taken from the jugular vein — the large vein that runs along the neck.

Giving blood will not hinder the animal's normal activities. Though few, the drawbacks of taking blood may include a slight swelling at the site where the blood was taken. However, blood should not be taken from a street animal just because it has no "owner" and is therefore considered dispensable. It should only be taken from healthy, owned, dogs whose owners can feed and look after them.

What do cows eat?

Feeding your cows is the initial, and most essential, part of taking care of them. A cow that is milking eats about 45-kg each day of feed.

This feed is a combination of: Hay, Grain, Silage (grass crops, including maize, sorghum or other cereals made using the entire green plant); Proteins (such as soybean meal), Vitamins (like carrots, leafy vegetables). Legume rich hay will increase calcium and protein content of the cow's diet. Grain also helps with more energy intake.

Trace minerals, like selenium and copper, are important as well.

Fresh clean water is also a necessity. Be sure that they have constant access to clean water.

In case of Calves, feed them colostrum milk, and as they get bigger, you can start feeding them hay and calf meal, or calf grain pellets, along with their milk. Their rumen is usually functioning well by 10-12 weeks of age.

They can be fed high quality baby calf meals, or pellets, after about five weeks of age.

Avoid giving excessive green grass in the first 6–8 weeks of age to prevent any digestive upsets.

What are two main causes of calf scours?

Scours is a term for diarrhoea; another term that may be applied to this disease is "enteritis," which means inflammation of the intestinal tract. While cattle of any age can develop diarrhoea, most cases of calf scours occur under one month of age, with the majority occurring between roughly 3 and 16 days of life.

Causes of infection include: Escherichia coli, Salmonella spp., Clostridium perfringens and other bacterial infections.

Other causes include: Overfeeding of milk, feeding calf from dirty pails, allowing them to drink too fast and using unsanitary pens.

Calf scours is not a single disease; it is a clinical sign associated with several diseases characterised by diarrhoea. Regardless of the cause, diarrhoea prevents the absorption of fluids from the intestines; also, body fluids pass from the scouring calf's body into the intestines.

Certain strains of E. coli and Salmonella, invade the deeper layers of the intestinal lining, causing it to rapidly deteriorate.

Generally, this causes release of blood and mucus into the diarrhoea. Calf scours are usually caused by two or more of these pathogens working together.

TREATMENT: Treatment should be directed toward correction of dehydration, acidosis (excess of acid in the blood that causes the pH to fall below 7.35), and electrolyte loss.

Antibiotic treatment can be given simultaneously with the treatment for dehydration.

Dehydration can be overcome with simple fluids, given by mouth, early in the course of the disease.

The clinical signs of dehydration first occur when the fluid loss reaches five to six percent of the body weight.

Fluid loss of eight percent results in depression, sunken eyes, dry skin, and a calf will probably be unable to stand.

A twelve percent loss of fluids usually results in death. Oral fluids, used early in the scouring process, have been quite successful.

Dry electrolyte powders that can be mixed with water for oral administration.

DO NOT use milk or milk replacers, as milk in the intestinal tract makes an ideal medium for bacteria, such as E. coli, to grow.

What is a bloat in cattle?

Bloat is a form of indigestion marked by excessive accumulation of gas in the rumen. Immediately after the cattle consumes a meal, the digestive process creates gases in the rumen. Most of the gases are eliminated by eructation (belching). Any interruption of this normal gas elimination results in gas accumulation or bloat. Fermentation creates gas, and too much gas causes pain and stomach bloating that puts pressure on internal organs. This is very dangerous for cows and many die from it in great agony.

Are cows used to quick, sudden movements?

Cows take time to figure out exactly what they are looking at. Any time you are doing something different with your cows, take it slowly so as to let the cow figure things out. Do not make quick, sudden movements, because the cow will startle and panic. A panicked cow takes quite a while to regain its calm. So, you are better off just relaxing and working at the cow's own pace.

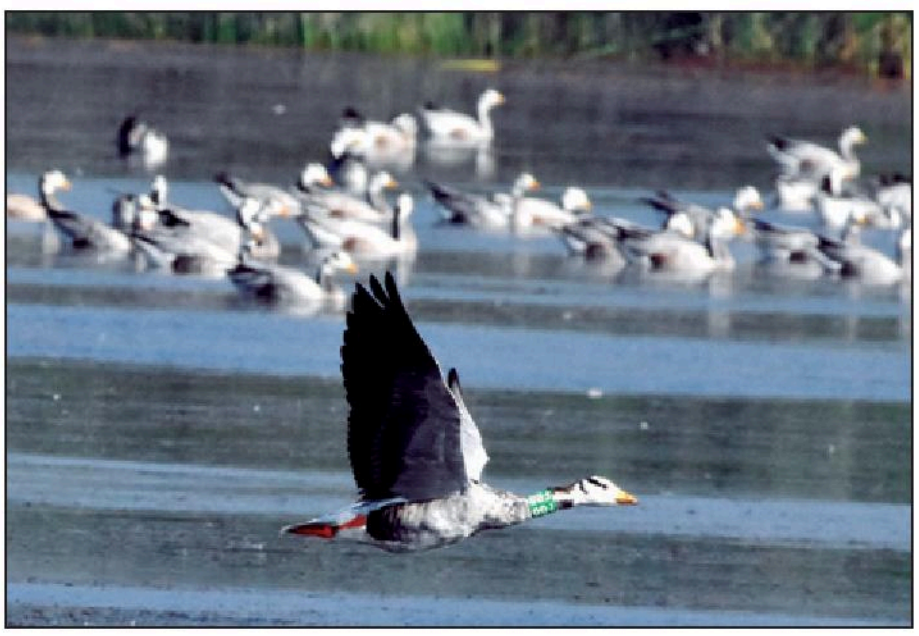
From Mongolia to Hadinaru Lake



- Migratory birds flock to Hadinaru Lake in Nanjangud for winter sojourn
- Geese with radio collars and identification tags also spotted

By Ravishankar

Nanjangud, Feb. 26- Even as winter season is through, birds from Mongolia have winged into the water body at Hadinaru Lake on the Mysuru-Nanjangud border, cheering bird-lovers and giving a strong indication that water bodies in Mysuru region are healthy.

The Bar-Headed Geese from Mongolia fly over the Himalayan Mountains and come to roost in different parts of the State after a brief sojourn in the central Indian plains. The wetlands and marshy habitats in the Northern parts of Karnataka, Mandya and Kolar and Mysuru-Chamarajanagar belt play host to birds during winter. Hadinaru Lake in Nanjangud taluk is a favourite among the Bar-Headed Geese.

With the arrival of migratory birds, the sprawling Lake, which is around 25 km from Mysuru city, located near the perennial Kabini River in Nanjangud, has turned into a bird-watchers' pilgrim centre. The Lake is located near Chikkayyana Chatra Hobli in Nanjangud taluk and these birds can be easily distinguished from other geese by the black bars on their heads and their call is a typical goose honking.

Crossing the mountains

Every year, these migratory birds which are one of the world's highest flying birds across the Himalayas, travel around 4,850 km to reach Hadinaru Lake during the winter. As the days are shorter and nights longer during winter in the Northern hemisphere, migratory birds find it difficult to find food in this short period in the brief days, and migrate to India by crossing the mountains.

Bar-Headed Geese (Anser indicus) is one of the world's highest flying birds (27,000 feet). They fly higher than the Mount Everest when they migrate over the Himalayas from Mongolia, Kazakhstan and Russia towards South Asia, as far South as peninsular India. As the winter weather in Mongolia, Kazakhstan, and Russia becomes colder, as low as 10 degrees Centigrade, these migratory birds cross the Himalayan range to reach Southern part of Asia.

A friend of farmers

Bar-Headed Geese with radio collars and identification tags, tagged with neck-bands and numbered have also arrived with other geese to the lake for their wintering. These migratory birds which arrive in January or February nest here for around four months before they return to their homes up North. The birds only feed only on paddy grains, which are abundantly found in the area, especially as these birds arrive in the post-harvest season. They rest in the mornings and feed on grains in the fields during nights, so their droppings are good manure for the crops. The birds are friends of farmers, say bird-watchers.

Apart from migratory birds like the Bar-Headed Goose, birds like the Little Grebe, Cotton Pygmy Goose, Breasted Kingfisher, Purple Moorhen, Night Heron, Small Kingfisher, Greater Cormorant, Large and Little Egret, Common Coot, Spot Billed Duck, Painted Stork, Black Ibis, River Tern and others can also be found at the Lake.

Favourite spots for winter visitors

Hadinaru Kere is one of the favourite spots for these winter visitors. Locals call these birds as 'Parvatakki' in Kannada, which means mountain birds. These birds are crepuscular (late evening and dusk) in their foraging habit and feed on harvested rice crop stubble shoots adjoining the lakes they visit. They take daytime refuge in the midst of vast water bodies like lakes and reservoirs and doze off in the warm winter sun in the midst of lakes.

The Hadinaru Lake can be reached from the Mysuru-Nanjangud Road deviating near Tandavapura Industrial Area, or from Mysuru-Uttanahalli Road towards Hadinaru Road. Now it is the responsibility of every individual to protect them and appreciate their navigational abilities and physiological endurance needed for the 6,200 miles long journey.

Remembering Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj – 4

Shivaji captures three Forts without a Fight

Shivaji was aged 19 and as mentioned earlier, was a healthy and active youngster, full of dynamism. It was a time, with the exception of a few chieftains in the far South of India, when there were no Hindu States. The Rajputs had long since submitted to the Sword of Islam and their Princes happy to join the Muslim imperial forces and, worse, personal compromises were made.

It was no different in Maratha country where Shivaji lived at that time. People had no desire for change of Muslim rulers and they were resigned to their fate. It was a situation where, like Britishers later, a few Muslim Sultans with their Hindu soldiers ruled the country.

Be that as it may, just as you cannot unscramble an egg, you cannot undo what has happened in the past history of a country. At best, some historical wrongs committed on the helpless people who were ruled could be corrected on gaining freedom. Let it be.

To revert to Shivaji, he was preparing his first move against the Muslim rule. To cut a long story short, it is interesting to know how Shivaji the Boy became Shivaji the King. The story begins from his capture of Bijapur Sultan's small Fort called 'Torna' near Pune. It was a barrack where there was an arsenal and also a treasury. The occupation of Torna Fort was simply a case of serendipity for a 19-year-old boy. It was on top of a hill and cool in the summer but very uncomfortable place to live when it started raining and the rainy season lasted a few months. Naturally, the Commander of the Fort was as dissatisfied as his men staying in that place during monsoon. Finally, in the rains of 1646, the Commander of the Fort without informing the Bijapur Sultan marched his troupes to the plains below and stayed there waiting for the monsoon to end.

It was then Shivaji and his band of hillmen, tribals, whom he was secretly training for war, slipped into the deserted Fort and seized the weapons from the arsenal and money and jewellery from the treasury. With this booty, he rewarded his followers with arms and money. Naturally, complaint against Shivaji reached the Sultan, but Shivaji pre-empted the move by alleging incompetence of the Commander of the Fort, etc.

In the meanwhile, Shivaji bribed the Muslim Governor of Kondana Fort (Sinhagad) and took possession of it. Once again, he took over the Purandar Fort by pretending to be an arbiter for the three sons of the Muslim Governor who had died. Thereafter, it was almost a free run across Mughal and Bijapur territories around Pune. In order to maintain an army of his own, Shivaji soon began to loot caravans of treasury being carried to the Sultan or the Mughal emperor with the war cry 'Hara Hara Mahadev', at the same time capturing territories.

The Bijapur Sultan sent a messenger ordering Shivaji to present himself at his Court and Shivaji did not. Sultan remembered Shivaji's own father, Shahaji, who was in his own service. The Sultan arrested Shahaji. He was dragged from the durbar hall and put in the prison. The Sultan thought of sending his army to capture Shivaji, but Sultan's advisors said that instead of military action, he should send Shahaji to go and bring Shivaji failing which he would be bricked up with walls around him, alive and killed. Like what Akbar did to Anarkali. A case where Shahaji was held by the Sultan to compel Shivaji to appear before him. Shivaji came to know of this option given to his father.

Instead of appearing before the Sultan, Shivaji sent a messenger to the Mughal emperor Shah Jahan making proposals and seeking Imperial help to attack the Bijapur Sultan. The Bijapur Sultan came to know of this move by Shivaji and realised if the emperor conferred an office to Shivaji, a position at the Court in Delhi, he would become the citizen of Mughal empire and the Bijapur Sultan would be held responsible for Shivaji's father, Shahaji's safety. The Sultan of Bijapur had no alternative but to order Shahaji's release from the tomb of bricks under construction.

As a last resort, Bijapur Sultan sends Shahaji to meet his son Shivaji and persuade him to stop his guerrilla warfare and looting of Sultan's treasury. So, father Shahaji goes to his son carrying the terms and conditions to negotiate a peace treaty. Shivaji agrees to these conditions which also meant the Muslim Sultan accepting Shivaji as an independent king. Following this agreement, Shahaji returns to Bijapur and the Sultan is pleased with the service of Shahaji. However, sometime later, when Shahaji goes for hunting, he falls from his horse in an accident and dies. It is said that a tomb of Shahaji can be seen even today at a place called Hodigere in Shivamogga district, Karnataka.

Incidentally, Shivaji was in Bengaluru for some time when he was aged 9. It appears in 1639, his father Shahaji was stationed at Bengaluru by the Sultan of Ahmednagar following the fall of Vijayanagar empire.

Threads of Karma that made the British Empire!

The maid of Jahanara, the beloved daughter of Emperor Shah Jahan, upsets an oil lamp in the Palace. There was fire and Jahanara tried to save her maid. In doing so, Jahanara scorched herself about the face and hands.

Shah Jahan demanded that the best physician in his Empire must attend to its loveliest princess. The British surgeon Gabriel Broughton of the English factory at Surat arrived at Agra. It may be mentioned that it was the same Surat factory of East India Company that Shivaji had looted and enriched himself as never before...

The British surgeon not only cured Jahanara but saved her beauty flawless. As reward, the surgeon would take nothing for himself, "but asked that a charter should be given to the East India Company to trade in Bengal." On the strength of this charter, the British built Calcutta that was British India's capital till it was shifted to Delhi in December of 1911. Another Empire was made.

Building Plans

Also, citizens will be notified on when officials will visit the site for inspection. A self-certification facility is introduced for smaller buildings coming up on sites measuring 30x40 or 30x50.

Individuals, mostly those wanting to construct small homes, faced much harassment. Now, they can simply apply and get self-certification instantly. All building plan approvals will be digitally-signed. Citizens will be required to pay the fees online with e-signature, officials said.

In Mysuru, there are three Planning Departments that sanction approvals. The Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) for buildings and layouts within Corporation limits, Mysuru Urban Development Authority (MUDA) for city outskirts and for MUDA layouts and District Town Planning Committee for projects coming under the city.

Usually, a plan approval process takes six to seven days but now it extends up to three to four months due to the involvement of corrupt officials who send the files from table to table, red tape and also due to middlemen menace. Once the LBPAS system is in place, the plan approval can be obtained online within two to three days, officials said.

Efforts on to make Mysuru a Smart City

Mysuru, Feb. 26 (RK&BCT)- If all goes well as per plans, Mysuru will soon be included in the list of Smart Cities floated by the Union Ministry of Urban Development.

When the first round of twenty Smart Cities was announced in August 2015, Davanagere and Belagavi made it to the first list from Karnataka. Mysuru did not make it in the third list also when four more cities — Mangaluru, Tumakuru, Shivamogga and Hubballi-Dharwad from Karnataka — were added.

Now, following the decision by the State Govt. to exert pressure on the Centre to include Mysuru under the Smart City project, inputs are being sought from the MCC based on the Smart City parameters. Sources in MCC said, fresh efforts are being made to get Mysuru a place in the list. The cities that were selected to be brought under Smart City had various parameters including service capabilities and management, internal resources gathering, number of individual toilets for households and public participation.

VC inaugurates FDP on 'Teaching techniques using Gamification'

Mysuru, Feb. 26- The University of Mysore (UoM), in association with ICT Academy, conducted a three-day Faculty Development Programme (FDP) on 'Teaching techniques using Gamification,' which began on Feb. 24 at Centre for Proficiency Development and Placement Services (CDPDS) Seminar Hall at Manasagangothri premises.

Gamification is the application of typical elements of game playing (example, point scoring, competition with others, rules of play) to other areas of activity, typically as a technique to encourage active participation.

Around 40 faculty members from affiliated institutions of UoM participated in the programme which enhanced their knowledge and help them share this knowledge to students in classrooms.

Speaking on the occasion, the Vice-Chancellor highlighted the importance of the technology and his experience of working with Main Frame systems during his research time. The UoM was the first in Mysuru to embrace technology and to have main frame systems for the research work of Computer Science graduates.

He highlighted that technology is now very much reachable to the faculty members and that they should embrace technology inclusion in all teaching and learning processes. He insisted faculty members update themselves with all the relevant technology and transfer the same to the student community.

The Vice-Chancellor further said that more such FDPs would be organised by the University in association with ICT Academy for faculty empowerment of all the UoM affiliated institutions.

About ICT Academy

ICT Academy was started to meet the skill requirements of the industry and generate more employment especially in Tier 2 and 3 towns. The organisation was formed with representations from the State Government of Tamil Nadu, leading companies in the ICT industry and National Association of Software Services Companies (NASSCOM) in India.

With training of teachers and students as the primary objective, ICT Academy has been working through a seven-pillar programme in the areas of faculty development, student skill development, entrepreneurship development, youth empowerment, industry-institute interaction, digital empowerment and research and publications.

Mysuru, Feb. 26- Since time immemorial, Cultural and Education Forum activities in Schools and Colleges have been playing a commendable role in empowering students' knowledge and skills in various areas of societal concerns, opined Dr. N.N. Prahallada, former Faculty, Regional Institute of Education (RIE), Mysuru.

He was speaking after inaugurating the Cultural and Education Forum activities of Vidya Vikas College of Education (B.Ed), Bannur Road, Mysuru, recently.

Dr. Prahallada said the success of Forum activities largely depends on the teachers' commitment, set of beliefs, values, morale and effectiveness. These activities, if organised on meaningful lines, will help students feel safe, trust others and feel encouraged to tackle challenges, take risks and ask questions. Teachers must act as catalytic agents of positive reinforcement; then alone students will develop better confidence to perform well.

Prof. Raja Gopal, Principal, Vidya Vikas College of Education, welcomed. The first and second year BEd students presented various activities.

Mysuru, Feb.26- Mysore Race Club (MRC) Limited will be hosting the 58th Edition of the Indian Turf Invitation Cup 2020 on Feb.29 and Mar.1.

Announcing this at a press meet at the MRC premises last evening, MRC Chairman Dr. N. Nithyanand Rao said that the two-day event will see the best horses from across the country racing and it is for the first time that this prestigious Invitation Cup is being held in Mysuru after the Mysore Race Club attained the Independent Turf Authority status in 2014.

In the two-day event, there will be a total of 16 races — 8 races on each day — and the total stake money is Rs. 3.71 crore.

Apart from the races, the Turf Authorities of India will be presenting the Annual Racing Awards at a ceremony to be held at MRC Club House on Feb.29. This award is to honour the leading Performers of the Season.

"Three new big stands are ready and we are expecting a huge crowd. Many punters and racing enthusiasts from across the country will be down in Mysuru for the weekend races which is co-sponsored by Dharmadhikari of Sree Meenakshi Sundereshwara Temple Swaroop Kumar and MRC is ready to stage the racing spectacle in all its glory," said Dr. Nithyanand Rao, who is back from his Asian Racing Conference in South Africa.

MRC is considering to increase the number of its members and a proposal in this regard will be submitted to the Government, Dr. Nithyanand Rao said and added that if the Government approves, 50 more new members will be included.

Major Events on Feb.29

1. The Bangalore Turf Club Sprinters' Cup (Grade I); 2. The Dr. M.A.M. Ramaswamy Stayers' Cup (Grade I)

Major Events on Mar.1

1. The Indian Turf Invitation Cup (Grade I); 2. The Maj. P.K. Mehra Memorial Super Mile Cup (Grade I); 3. The Suresh Mahindra Multi-Million Trophy (Grade II).

Best horse of India 'War Hammer' not in the race

The bad news for the racing buffs is that one of the best horses on the Indian racing circuit, War Hammer, will not be a part of the Indian Turf Invitation Cup, due to suspensory ligament problem.

"It is very disappointing that the best horse is not in the fray for the Indian Turf Invitation Cup. But I just didn't want to take a chance. He has remained unbeaten from his eight starts including four classic victories and it is only fair to provide him rest and treatment," said Trainer Prasanna Kumar.

MRC Chairman Dr. Nithyanand Rao said: "It is sad that War Hammer will be missing from the line-up. We still have all the best performers competing in all the major events and the fact that all the big owners and top trainers in the country have decided to bring their star performers down to Mysuru only confirms the trust and appreciation MRC enjoys."

In the absence of War Hammer in the Indian Turf Invitation Cup, the two older horses, Star Superior from Rajesh Narredu's yard and the Kolkata challenger Adjudicate, winner of the event last year at Hyderabad, are likely to gain top billing.

KSRTC hikes bus fares by 12 percent

Bengaluru, Feb. 26- In a jolt to the common man, the State Government, hiked KSRTC bus fares by 12 percent, starting from Tuesday midnight. The hike will apply to KSRTC, NWKRTC and NEKRTC, while the BMTC has been exempted from the hike.

The previous hike in bus fares was five and a half years ago.

KSRTC Managing Director Shivayogi C. Kalasad said the Government approval has come more than a year after the Corporation had sought a fare hike. US President concludes 36-hour, 3-city India visit

Focus of the tour was a strong personal rapport between Trump and PM Modi

New Delhi, Feb. 26 (UNI)- US President Donald Trump concluded his 36-hour three-city (Ahmedabad, Agra and New Delhi) India visit after a busy second day yesterday during which he held talks with Indian business leaders, addressed a media briefing and attended a State banquet at the Rashtrapati Bhavan.

Both POTUS (President Of The United States) and FLOTUS (First Lady Of The United States) boarded Air Force One in New Delhi last night after a hectic schedule.

BBC described the visit as follows: "The optics of the trip was crucial both for him and Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi. Trump wanted to show people in the US that he was hugely popular abroad and that he was capable of negotiating good deals out of a country he once described as the "king of tariffs". On the other hand, the Indian PM desperately needed some good headlines after being under the spotlight due to his controversial decision to revoke Kashmir's autonomy and the ongoing protests against his new citizenship law. In the end, both leaders had their wishes fulfilled despite not agreeing on a much talked-about trade agreement."

Donald Trump hailed it as a "very productive visit" but said he would keep working with Modi for "a comprehensive trade deal".

The US is one of India's biggest trade partners. The two leaders hope the visit will mend a rift over tariffs.

Trump's visit to Delhi has been marred by the deadliest religious unrest in the capital for decades. Asked about the violence, he told reporters that the incident was "up to India" to handle. However, he said he had brought up the issue of religious freedom in the country and was impressed by PM Modi's response.

"He [Modi] was incredible, he told me - 'In India we have worked very hard to have religious freedoms'," Trump said. After talks yesterday, the US President and Modi acknowledged they had not been able to sign a trade deal, but announced that negotiations would continue.

"We also agreed to open negotiations on a big trade deal. At the global level, our relationship is depended on the similar democratic values we share," PM Modi said. But deals in other areas were announced. India is to buy attack helicopters and other US military equipment worth three billion dollars, Trump said.

They also announced co-operation in fighting radical Islamist terrorism and deepening energy ties, as well as pledging to work together to make 5G technology safer. As part of the deals announced, US firm Exxon Mobil and Indian Oil have signed an agreement to help India import more Liquefied Natural Gas.

Bilateral trade between the two countries totalled 142.6 billion dollars in 2018. But in June 2019, the US ended preferential trade status for India. India imposed retaliatory tariffs on 28 US products, causing a diplomatic rift between the two countries. But Trump's visit has helped improve relations and cement what appears to be a strong personal rapport between him and PM Modi.

CM B.S. Yediyurappa meets Trump

Dressed in his regular white safari suit, Karnataka Chief Minister B.S. Yediyurappa shook hands with United States President Donald Trump in New Delhi yesterday.

Yediyurappa joined many Union Ministers, BJP senior leaders and his counterparts from other States to take part in a banquet hosted by President Ram Nath Kovind in honour of Trump at Rashtrapati Bhavan.

US delegation was served authentic Indian delicacies

While US President Donald Trump's love for McDonald's is conspicuous, in India he was only served authentic Indian delicacies. What started with high tea at the Sabarmati Ashram in Gujarat, finished with a flourish at the elaborate dinner party at Rashtrapati Bhavan last evening.

Trump likes steak, hamburgers and meatloaf, but he's going to be plied in New Delhi with goat meat — marinated overnight to steep in the flavours. The delegation was served with amuse-bouche (smoked orange peel panna cotta), which is a pre-appetizer course in French cuisine, followed by appetizers which included aloo tikki with spinach papdi, spiced salmon, and lemon grass and coriander soup.

Next, they were presented with the main course, which included the wildly expensive but superlative in taste morel mushrooms from the Himalayas, lamb biryani, a delectable preparation of the lamb leg called 'Raan Aalishaan', and of course, Rashtrapati Bhavan's special in-house culinary innovation that is known for its rich texture 'Dal Raisina', named after the Raisina Hill. The menu also included mint raita.

Chef Machindra Kasture said that the dal has a velvety texture and is peppered with mild spices, along with a secret ingredient — kasuri methi leaves. For the soirée, special efforts were made by in-house chefs to curate a menu that tasted Indian, but had an American twist, so as to cater to the tastes of the foreign dignitaries. The dessert included hazelnut apple pie with salty caramel sauce — served with vanilla ice cream — and malpua with rabdi.

PAC inspects City Railway Station

Mysuru, Feb. 26- The Passenger Amenities Committee (PAC), constituted by the Ministry of Railways (MoR) at the National level under the Chairmanship of P.K. Krishnadas to check the passenger amenities provided at Railway Stations and on board trains, inspected Mysuru City Railway Station on Feb. 24.

The Committee comprising the Chairman and four members inspected the various amenities provided at the Station for the passengers like waiting rooms, current booking and advanced reservation offices, pay and use toilet in the circulating area, parking facilities, foot over-bridge, escalators and lifts, security and surveillance system, catering and miscellaneous stalls and others.

The Committee expressed satisfaction over the scale of amenities and the high standard of cleanliness maintained at the City Railway Station. The Committee also interacted with rail-users at the Station to get a first-hand feedback on how they felt about the facilities provided at the Station.

Speaking on the need to have a greater emphasis on women's safety in Railway premises and on board trains, the Committee wants the Railways to step up vigil in areas such as subway by deploying more number of Women Railway Protection staff and also enhance ticket checking staff to instil confidence in rail-users.

The Committee was also in favour of installation of baggage scanners and metal detectors at the main entry of the Station. However, in view of multiple entries to City Railway Station and en route boarding this may not be completely effective, they opined.

Later in the day, the Committee held discussions with Divisional Railway Manager (DRM) Aparna Garg on several key issues relating to passenger amenities. Garg highlighted that the failure by the Indian Railway Catering & Tourism Corporation Ltd. (IRCTC) to finalise the contract for setting up a Food Plaza in the Station as the main reason for the station still not having a full-fledged round-the-clock-catering services. 'This is pending since September 2019 and affecting passengers' comfort, the DRM said and added that completion of passenger amenity has been affected due to shortage of grant. The Committee noted this and assured to take up these issues at a higher level.

The Committee also inspected Srirangapatna Station which incidentally is a very historic place from the point of view of tourists. Several representations were submitted to the Committee seeking stoppage of trains at the Station. The Committee wanted these matters to be examined holistically taking into account the operational and safety issues involved. Additional Divisional Railway Manager, A. Devasahayam, Sr. Divisional Commercial Manager, S.G.Yatish and other senior Branch Officers of Mysuru Division were present during the inspection.

WORD OF THE DAY

Farthing

Pronunciation: fahr-thing.
Meaning: Something of very little value.
Origin: A 'farthing' was formerly an English coin of the smallest denomination, worth a quarter of a penny. Originally the coin was made of silver, then of a copper alloy, and finally of bronze. The coin was discontinued in 1961. The Middle English name for the coin was ferthing, farthing (with still more variants), made of silver, and came from Old English fēorthing, fēorthung "a quarter, a fourth part, a farthing." The Old English forms are derivatives of fēortha "fourth" and the noun suffix –ing "one belonging to, descended from," sometimes used to form diminutives, as here. Farthing entered English before a.d.1000.
Example: I don't care a farthing for your opinion.

THE ODD WORD

Felicide

Killing of a cat.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Speaking after inaugurating the event, he noted the rise in citizen journalism at the time of disasters and praised the efforts of alert citizens. He also furthered to acknowledge the influential role social media plays in today's world.
